VI. WORKS IN PROGRESS

A. Under Revision

1) “Are State Budget Stabilization Funds Really a Tool to Circumvent Tax and Expenditure Limitations? Assessing the Factors that Influence States to Access their Budget Stabilization Fund” with Jeremy Phillips and LaShonda M. Stewart.

2) “Innovation of Local Governments: The Diffusion of Informal Savings” (with Jeremy Phillips and LaShonda M. Stewart). Analysis looks at unreserved fund balance practices as innovation, uses its adoption to test two diffusion hypotheses: Leaning and Emulation.

3) “The Adoption of GFOA Recommended Saving Policies in US Counties”

This study analyzes local government fund balance practices with data drawn from a random sample of 341 US counties and county equivalents. So far, we are finding that counties with publicly available comprehensive annual financial reports (CAFRs) are about 16 percent more likely to have adopted some Government Finance Officers Association (GFOA)-recommended unreserved fund balance policy attributes. We are currently adding additional years of data. This seems to be the first attempt to analyze local government savings in this way nationally.

B. Preparation for Submission

“Rapid Diffusion in the Time of COVID 19: Examination of the Adoption of State Mask Mandates” (With Joshua L. Mitchell, LaShonda M. Stewart, Brian Chapman and Charles Menifield). This article examines the recent round of mask mandate adoptions by the U.S. state governments in response to the Covid-19 pandemic as an example of rapid diffusion.

C. New research project

The impact of the Covid-19 pandemic on state and local government finances. A collective project drawing on the expertise of published public budgeting scholars including Charles Menifield, Cal Clark, John Hamman, Josh Mitchell, Jeremy Phillips, and LaShonda Stewart looking at how the economic turndown impacts revenues and the use of government savings (i.e., rainy day funds and unreserved fund balances). Particular focus will be on utilization of rainy-day funds and unreserved fund balances. The global cost of the pandemic is also an area of interest.
